4 — VERY BAD MATCH

RAHUL SINGH — DETAILED PROJECTS, CERTIFICATIONS & EVIDENCE

PROJECTS

Basic Excel Expense Tracker
Created a personal spreadsheet to record monthly expenses and calculate totals.
Technical stack: Excel.
Evidence: Evidence: spreadsheet exists, but it does not demonstrate programming or machine-learning ability.

CERTIFICATIONS

- Python Basics — self-paced online course, 2026. Evidence: completion badge only; no graded project or assessment evidence.
- MS Excel Basics — online course, 2024. Evidence: completion certificate.

ACHIEVEMENTS

- Received a customer-service appreciation certificate for attendance and response quality.

LOCATION & WORK MODE

Navi Mumbai, Maharashtra, India. Candidate has not confirmed ability to attend the required Mumbai office schedule.

JD MATCH ASSESSMENT

VERY BAD MATCH: Multiple core requirements are unmet. The candidate does not have the required or closely related technical education, lacks evidence of practical Python/ML work, has no meaningful ML project, has no relevant technical internship, and has not confirmed the required hybrid attendance. These gaps make the candidate unsuitable for the current role without major retraining.

EVIDENCE SUMMARY

Available evidence supports customer-service and basic office skills only. There is no reliable evidence supporting the core AI/ML engineering requirements.

DATASET PURPOSE

This resume is intentionally calibrated to a specific quality tier for the same Junior AI/ML Engineer job description. The candidate profile is not merely shorter or longer: the education, skills, experience, projects, evidence quality, and constraint fit are changed so that the four resumes represent clearly different levels of suitability.
